CRITICIZE TRAINING, LEADERSHIP OF YOUNG COMMUNISTS

STATES EDUCATIONAL TASKS OF PARTY -- Tirana, Zeri i Popullit, 2 Feb 52

The best method of educating young Communists is to interest them in active work, first entrusting them with responsibilities and then checking on the execution of their duties. Thus, in their struggle against difficulties and obstacles, they will become strong and prove their ability.

Many party organizations defective along these lines. Their work is monopolized by a few persons who shut out the other Communists, especially the young. If only a few comrades discuss and the rest merely listen, the party organization is not really alive, but needs healthy criticism and self-criticism.

Party meetings are in their fashion, schools to educate Bolsheviks in general, but especially young Communists. Here all the problems are discussed which face the party both in industrial centers and villages. Here they also learn how to correct all the defects in the work of primary organizations or of individual Communists, in the Bolshevik spirit of criticism and self-criticism.

Therefore, to educate young Communists, party organizations must give them duties such as making reports at organizational meetings, serving in posts on the directorate of the organization, carrying on welfare work, thereby fitting them for subsequent practical work.
